LDS Night at Indianapolis Indians

Almost a hundred LDS members attended the second annual LDS Night at the Indianapolis Indians on May 30. The weather held out until the top of the 4th inning when they delayed the game, rolled out the tarp, then rain poured down.

“It was too bad the weather didn’t hold out,” said Alysia Larson, Central Indiana chapter president. “The seats were close and there was a lot of action on the field.”

The next LDS Night at the Indianapolis Indians will be in May 2016.

The New Castle branch missionaries attended along with a number of BYU Management Society committee members.

President Message: Education Pays

The average bachelor graduate makes 75 to 80 percent more money than a high school graduate. The simple truth holds out—education pays. Education takes people out of their poverty, mentally and physically.

College isn’t cheap. Tuition for a four-year Hoosier university starts about $15,000-30,000 a year. With those daunting numbers and future debt to inherit, some youth are choosing to get to work and pick up a degree later. Waiting means it may take longer to receive their education or presents road blocks as they are stunted and even passed over for promotions because they lack a degree.

Our Central Indiana chapter will address education in upcoming events. In September it will be on entrepreneurs and women in business. Then in November the event will be a college fair covering how to afford college and what other alternatives are available for education.

I recall watching my mother trudge to earn her bachelor’s degree in chemical engineering while balancing five kids and a failing marriage. With her education she was able to rise above the divorce and support her kids as she used her education as a springboard in life.

With education we can follow President Gordon B. Hinkley’s advice, “Be educated.”

Education is a sound investment.
